FIELD UPDATE

I took ride to check on the field this morning (April 1). It is still really wet. I was able to walk up to just past the cut. Any further and I would have needed boots. It'll be a little while yet before we'll be able to use it.

There are some pretty big ruts right after the stone at the entrance. We'll have some work to do once it dries out a little. Just past the cut there are some ruts that aren't horrible but... You can see they were left with something with big tread. We're hoping to have our next meeting in May at the field. From a distance the shelter looked good. It told me it misses us and can't wait until conditions allow us to come visit.

R/C AIR-CRAFTERS 61ST ANNUAL AUCTION

R/C Air-Crafters will be having their annual auction this weekend - April 6, 2025. Admission: Adults $8.00. Women & Children under 12 free. Doors open at 10:00 am. Auction starts at Noon. Door prizes, 50/50, E-flite Sportix 1.1m BNF Airplane raffle. Food and drink available. 1600 Southwestern Blvd, Buffalo, NY, 14224-4500. <http://www.aircraftersofwny.org/> (I still get an error when I try their website)

MARCH MEETING HIGHLIGHTS

At our last meeting we had some good discussions about web-site updates, working on getting permission to put our sign up so that we'll have more visibility with the public and working on other things we can do to help recruit some new members. We're still thinking it would be fun to host a swap meet at our field and are looking for volunteers.

After the business meeting we did some 3D scanning of members to make 3D printed pilots that look like them. Here are two examples. Recognize anyone?

INDOOR FLYING

No word on indoor flying opportunities coming up. I'll try to watch email and forward any news we receive.
